

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for the assessment of the responsiveness of a cancer patient to antifolate-containing chemotherapy, the method is effected by searching for a mutation or mutations in a reduced folate carrier (RFC) gene in cells derived from the patient.